Webinar: The Iran deal and what it means for macro and markets

Join ING's economists and strategists for a live webinar on 17 June to discuss what the latest Middle East breakthrough could mean for energy prices, rate expectations and financial markets. Sign up here

The US and Iran have said they've agreed an interim deal that reopens the Strait of Hormuz and extends a fragile ceasefire. Oil prices have fallen but plenty of questions remain – not least whether a deal can stand the test of time.

Join ING's economists and strategists for their first thoughts on what a deal could mean for the prospect of interest rate hikes and the broader impact on financial markets. You'll discover:

- Why energy prices could go higher again, even with a deal in place
- Whether the European Central Bank is still on track for a second rate hike this summer
- If a deal could unlock a move in EUR/USD to 1.20 by year-end
- Scenarios for swap rates and the ripple effects through bond markets
