UBS Global Data Central 2.0

Welcome to our second edition of the UBS Global Data Centre Central – our new, one-stop shop product bringing together our key research, insights and newsflow on the Data Centre / AI theme (DCC 1.0).

What is key in today's piece?

- We build out further our work on 800VDC power architecture transition with an introduction of an 800VDC Primer and a dedicated Expert Call (23 July at 2pm UKT, register here)
- Raise our forecasts for Data Centre Equipment market growth
- Build out further valuation and positioning tracking across the AI/Data Centre ecosystem
- Offer our views on latest newsflow including Meta's push to sell excess AI compute capacity, Google's liquid-to-air cooling sidecar, and France's data centre build-out progress.

Raising market outlook for DC Equipment space

- We now forecast the Data Centre Equipment market (€m/revenue terms) to grow 25% in 2026, 20% in 2027 and 10-15% in 2028-2030 vs previously 20-25% in 2026, 15-20% in 2027 and 10-15% in 2028-30. The key drivers for the upgrade are 1/ Strong Q1 orders performance across the key players and consistently positive commentary on Q2 developments and 2/ Latest UBS Evidence Lab data pointing to a substantial increase in under construction and planned capacity pipeline versus beginning of the year. We clearly see further potential upside to our new forecasts but we are slightly held back by the UBS Evidence Lab showing flattening of yoy growth in MW additions to total global capacity in Q1 this year (strong growth in US vs a substantial slowdown in Asia Pac) and hence we look for further data points from Q2 reporting and subsequent data releases.
- Stock calls
 - In our European Capital Goods coverage, our top picks in this space are Siemens, Schneider and Munters (all Buy rated) while we are Neutral on ABB and Legrand and have a Sell on Belimo.
 - With respect to our US Industrials coverage, we remain positive on all industrial companies exposed to AI infrastructure investment, with our preference reflecting quality of execution on the expected growth. We expect content per MW to increase across the board as more power delivery is required to the rack. GE Vernova, Vertiv and Eaton appear best positioned to us with respect to 800VDC dynamics. GEV solid state transformers are being co-funded by a hyperscaler customer, and we expect testing to start in September followed by commercialization about 6 months after that. In Machinery, we remain positive on Cummins. In E&C, we continue to expect PWR, MTZ, PRIM, and DY to benefit from a tight labor supply market in fiber and electrical work on data centers.
 - In Asia, we continue to see Delta Electronics well positioned over the next few years.

DATA CENTRE MARKET OUTLOOK UPGRADE

Source: UBS research

We now forecast the Data Centre Equipment market (€m/revenue terms) to grow 25% in 2026, 20% in 2027 and 10-15% in 2028-2030 vs previously 20-25% in 2026, 15-20% in 2027 and 10-15% in 2028-30. The key drivers for the upgrade are 1/ Strong Q1 orders performance across the key players and consistently positive commentary on Q2 developments and 2/ Latest UBS Evidence Lab data pointing to a substantial increase in under construction and planned capacity pipeline versus beginning of the year. We clearly see further potential upside to our new forecasts but we are slightly held back by the UBS Evidence Lab showing flattening of yoy growth in MW additions to total global capacity in Q1 this year (strong growth in US vs a substantial slowdown in Asia Pac) and hence we look for further data points from Q2 reporting and subsequent data releases.

UBS Evidence Lab Global Data Centre Monitor

According to UBS Evidence Lab data, global operational capacity increased by 28GW in 2025 from 90GW in 2024, reaching a total of 118GW. This is higher than implied from the 21GW capacity under construction at the end of 2024. North America/APAC/Europe accounts for 45%/40%/14% of the total capacity, respectively.

Planned capacity increased significantly y/y, by 66GW or 88%, reaching 141GW by the end of 2025. North America continues to dominate, accounting for 65% of the planned capacity while APAC and Europe are both at 16-17%. Under construction capacity is at 34GW globally by end of 2025. We see this as a good indicator of the capacity addition within a 1-year time frame, and see upside from this based on the evidence from 2024/25. In Q1 2026, operational capacity increased by another 6GW while planned capacity saw a significant growth of 20GW.

Our Global Data Center Monitor from UBS Evidence Lab indicates that data centers in the planning stage increased by 14% (or 20 gigawatts) in 1Q'26 compared to 4Q'25. The combined capacity of under construction and planned data centers has reached 200 gigawatts, doubling within a year. This represents 7x the capacity installed during 2025 and 60% higher than total operational capacity.

From a regional perspective, data centers growth was driven by the US, which accounted for 70% of the increase over the three month period. However, every region showed sequential growth compared to the last quarter. On an absolute basis, capacity expansion remains levered towards the US which accounts for more than 60% of the global under construction and planned capacity, compared to 45% of operational capacity

Hyperscaler capex

We continue to see sustained capex intensity among hyperscalers, with aggregate capex across the top 12 players expected to exceed $1tn by 2027. However, the capex-to-sales ratio appears to be stabilising at around 40% as revenue growth catches up. Capex-to-OCF has also increased materially, peaking at 103% in 2026E before moderating to c95% in 2027E. We also note a persistent trend of upward revisions to hyperscaler capex.

- Expert call with Dell'Oro Group (link). 1/ Data center capacity additions to remain strong: Capacity additions are expected to scale from >25GW in 2025 to 40-60GW by 2030. 2/ Power is still the main bottleneck: The industry is increasingly focused on behind-the-meter solutions, new ways to access stranded power, and improving flexibility via on-site generation and load shedding. 3/ Hyperscaler capex YOY growth is expected to peak in 2026: The four largest hyperscalers have already deployed ~$600b-$700b of capital this year, and spending is on track to reach close to $1T in 2026.
- Expert call on 800VDC (link). 800V DC architecture is emerging as the next standard in data centres, driven by rising rack density, with adoption still early but expected to accelerate. It delivers c.1–3% efficiency gains per conversion, with potential total power savings of ~5%, alongside lower system costs, reduced copper usage and simplified infrastructure (less need for UPS, inverters and PDUs). While insulation and EMI challenges remain, the shift will favour high-voltage technology players and reduce demand for traditional low-voltage components.

800VDC ARCHITECTURE 101

800V DC is emerging as a structural shift in data centre power architecture, driven by rapidly rising rack densities that are pushing traditional low-voltage AC systems to their limits. By increasing voltage, operators can reduce current for a given power level, which lowers copper usage, reduces heat losses and improves efficiency—effectively enabling continued scaling toward several hundred kW and ultimately MW-class racks.

Architecturally, this implies a move from distributing low-voltage AC across the facility to rectifying power earlier and distributing high-voltage DC, with conversion happening closer to the chip. This reduces the role of low-voltage AC switchgear and PDUs, while increasing the importance of DC distribution, protection and power electronics. Medium-voltage infrastructure remains in place, and UPS evolves rather than disappears, shifting toward lithium-ion and more distributed configurations.

Adoption is expected to be phased. Near-term solutions (e.g. sidecar or centralized DC architectures) focus on supporting higher rack density while leveraging existing supply chains. Over time, the industry is likely to move toward more fully DC-based systems incorporating solid-state transformers and advanced DC-DC conversion. However, multiple architectures are likely to coexist for an extended period, suggesting a gradual transition rather than a rapid, standardised shift. The efficiency benefits are meaningful but incremental, with savings driven by fewer conversion steps and lower copper intensity, partially offset by greater spend on DC switchgear, controls and protection. The transition also introduces new technical challenges, including insulation, safety and EMI management, increasing system complexity.

From a vendor perspective, the shift primarily drives a mix change. Exposure to high-voltage systems, DC distribution and advanced power electronics becomes increasingly valuable, favouring players with strong capabilities in these areas. Conversely, pure low-voltage AC exposure faces structural pressure unless offerings are expanded up the voltage stack. Overall, 800V DC represents an evolution of the electrical architecture, redistributing value toward higher-voltage, more integrated and more software-enabled solutions rather than reducing total addressable spend.

Today's data centre power architecture is fundamentally an AC distribution system. Power enters the facility at medium voltage, is stepped down through transformers to LV AC, passes through UPS systems, and is distributed around the data hall via AC busbars before finally reaching rack PDUs. Conversion to the DC voltages required by chips ultimately occurs inside server power supplies.

The architecture is well proven and highly resilient, but it requires multiple conversion stages and significant quantities of LV electrical equipment. As rack densities increase beyond traditional enterprise and cloud workloads, the efficiency and physical footprint of this power chain become increasingly important design constraints

Source: UBS

A second common architecture inserts additional distribution layers, including central PDUs and remote power panels, between the UPS and IT equipment. This approach improves operational flexibility and allows operators to support larger deployments, but adds further equipment, floor space and electrical conversion stages.

Rack density: up to c100kW
		33kV AC → 11kV AC	Product/system: Utility grid connection and incoming MV supply. What it means: The data centre receives power from the external grid at high or medium voltage. 33kV AC steps to 11kV AC. Role: HV is used because it is more efficient for transmitting large amounts of power over a distance. Lower current means lower losses and less copper.
	MV switchgear	11kV AC	Product/system: MV switchgear What it means: Switchgear is a set of electrical cabinets containing circuit breakers, disconnectors, relays, protection devices and monitoring equipment. Role: It controls and protects the incoming 11kV power. It can isolate faults, disconnect sections for maintenance and route power to the right parts of the facility.
	Transformer	400/230V AC	Product/system: Transformer What it means: A transformer changes voltage from one AC level to another. Here it steps 11kV AC down to 400/230V AC. Role: The transformer makes the power useable for LV building and IT distribution. In many data centre architectures, 400V AC three-phase is used for facility distribution, while 230V AC single-phase can feed downstream IT or outlets.
	AC main distribution	400V AC	Product/system: LV AC main switchboard / main distribution board What it means: This is the central LV distribution panel after the transformer. Role: It splits 400V AC power into multiple downstream circuits feeding UPS systems, busbars, PDUs or data halls. In today's architecture a lot of value sits in LV AC equipment because power is still being distributed as AC across the site.
	LV UPS	400V AC	Product/system: LV UPS What it means: Low voltage uninterruptible power supply. Role: The UPS provides backup power and power conditioning if the grid fails or fluctuates. In this architecture, the UPS sits at the 400V AC layer. A typical UPS includes rectifiers, inverters, batteries or other energy storage, controls and bypass systems.
	AC busways	400V AC	Product/system: AC busways What it means: A busway is similar to a busbar system: an enclosed conductor system used to distribute power through a building or data hall. Role: Instead of using many large cables, the busway provides a modular, structured power distribution route.
	PDU	400V AC in → 230V AC outlets	Product/system: Floor-mounted or row-level PDU What it means: A larger PDU can be a cabinet or panel that transforms, distributes and protects power for multiple racks. Role: : PDU takes 400V AC input and provides 230V AC output. It creates useable branch circuits for IT racks and can include breakers, monitoring and sometimes transformers.
	Remote power panel	230V AC	Product/system: Remote power panel What it means: Distribution panel placed close to the IT load, usually near rack rows. Role: It takes power from a PDU and splits it into multiple branch circuits feeding individual racks.
	Rack PDU to rack line up	230V AC in → 12V DC	Product/system: Rack PDU What it means: Power strip or power distribution device mounted inside or alongside a server rack. Role: It takes upstream power and distributes it to individual servers, GPUs, networking gear and other IT equipment in the rack. In today's architecture, the rack PDU receives AC and provides 230V AC outlets to the IT equipment. More advanced rack PDUs can include metering, remote switching, outlet-level monitoring, temperature sensors and network connectivity.

Source: UBS

Phase 1 represents the first meaningful shift away from traditional AC distribution. While the upstream architecture remains largely intact, an AC-to-DC power shelf is introduced before the rack line-up, creating an 800V DC distribution bus that feeds the racks directly.

The key change is that power conversion moves closer to the facility level rather than occurring repeatedly inside individual servers. Rack-level equipment receives 800V DC and converts it to 48V or 12V DC for IT hardware. This reduces conversion losses, simplifies server power architectures and helps support rack densities of c.150kW, materially above most current deployments.

From a supplier perspective, the value pool begins to migrate away from conventional rack PDUs towards high-power rectifiers, DC conversion systems and rack-level DC-DC power electronics. However, we see the disruption to incumbent electrical vendors as relatively limited given it does not remove a significant part of the existing installed base. This makes ORV3 an attractive near-term migration path for operators seeking higher rack densities without redesigning the entire facility power chain.

Source: UBS

Phase 2 introduces the sidecar architecture which pushes power conversion even closer to the rack. Rather than distributing AC through busbars and multiple downstream distribution devices, a dedicated sidecar power cabinet converts 400V AC directly into

Phase 1 adds an 800V DC layer to the existing architecture, centralising power conversion and enabling higher rack densities with minimal disruption to existing infrastructure

800V DC adjacent to the rack row.

Centralising conversion within the sidecar reduces the amount of power equipment located within the rack itself, freeing up valuable compute space. The architecture is designed to support rack densities approaching 400kW.

The sidecar model removes a larger portion of the traditional AC distribution stack. Functions previously performed by busbars, rack PDUs and associated rack-level AC infrastructure are consolidated into a dedicated sidecar conversion cabinet positioned adjacent to the compute racks.

For electrical equipment suppliers, this phase represents a more meaningful architectural transition than ORV3 because existing product categories begin to be substituted.

PHASE 2 (SIDECAR) Rack density: up to c.400kW
	33kV AC → 11kV AC	Product/system: Utility grid connection and incoming MV supply. What it means: The data centre receives power from the external grid at high or medium voltage. 33kV AC steps to 11kV AC. Role: HV is used because it is more efficient for transmitting large amounts of power over a distance. Lower current means lower losses and less copper.
	MV switchgear 11kV AC	Product/system: MV switchgear What it means: Switchgear is a set of electrical cabinets containing circuit breakers, disconnectors, relays, protection devices and monitoring equipment. Role: It controls and protects the incoming 11kV power. It can isolate faults, disconnect sections for maintenance and route power to the right parts of the facility.
	Transformer 400/230V AC	Product/system: Transformer What it means: A transformer changes voltage from one AC level to another. Here it steps 11kV AC down to 400/230V AC. Role: The transformer makes the power useable for LV building and IT distribution. In many data centre architectures, 400V AC three-phase is used for facility distribution, while 230V AC single-phase can feed downstream IT or outlets.
	AC main distribution 400V AC	Product/system: LV AC main switchboard / main distribution board What it means: This is the central LV distribution panel after the transformer. Role: It splits 400V AC power into multiple downstream circuits feeding UPS systems, busbars, PDUs or data halls. In today's architecture a lot of value sits in LV AC equipment because power is still being distributed as AC across the site.
	LV UPS 400V AC	Product/system: LV UPS What it means: Low voltage uninterruptible power supply. Role: The UPS provides backup power and power conditioning if the grid fails or fluctuates. In this architecture, the UPS sits at the 400V AC layer. A typical UPS includes rectifiers, inverters, batteries or other energy storage, controls and bypass systems.
	Sidecar 400V AC → 800V DC	Product/system: 800V DC sidecar power distribution unit What it means: A sidecar is a power cabinet placed beside, behind or adjacent to a rack or rack row. It is not the compute rack itself; it is a dedicated power conversion/distribution cabinet. Role: It converts 400V AC into 800V DC and feeds the rack line-up. The sidecar centralises power conversion outside the IT rack. That can free up space inside compute racks, simplify rack design and support much higher power.
	Rack line up 800V DC → 48/12V DC	Product/system: Rack line-up distribution plus DC-DC conversion What it means: The rack receives 800V DC from the sidecar, then converts it down to 48V DC or 12V DC for servers, GPUs and boards. Change vs today: The rack is no longer mainly an AC endpoint. It becomes part of a DC distribution architecture.

Phase 3 removes the largest proportion of today's electrical infrastructure. Conventional transformers, low-voltage switchboards, low-voltage UPS systems and much of the AC distribution chain are replaced by medium-voltage UPS systems, solid-state transformers and native DC distribution.

In this architecture, power is converted from 11kV AC directly into 800V DC, eliminating several intermediate stages. Short-duration energy storage stabilises the DC bus and supports the highly dynamic power requirements of future AI clusters. The facility evolves from an AC distribution network into a predominantly DC power system.

If commercialised at scale, a full solid-state architecture could support rack densities approaching 1MW while materially reducing conversion losses, equipment count and electrical footprint.

Phase 2 replaces busbars and rack-level AC distribution with sidecar cabinets that convert 400V AC to 800V DC beside the rack, enabling up to c.400kW rack densities and a more significant shift away from traditional AC infrastructure

KEY NEWSFLOW AND RESEARCH

● Learnings from Q2 previews

- Legrand mentioned they have a sidecar prototype which we think they will fully launch at the CMD in September. They continue to see a neutral to positive impact for 80% of sales, with a negative impact for 20% of its sales. They expect hybrid (with sidecar) to begin generating sales in 2027/8 with the market growing to 10-20% of all new IT loads in 2030.
- Schneider is now seeing the price impact in P&L in Q2. The message for H1 Gross Margin remained 'flat to slightly down', which we now view as closer to flat than down. Regarding Data Centres, we expect strong dynamics to continue.
- ABB mentioned Data Centre demand continues to stand out. They already have DC breaker based on power electronics and semiconductor and also rectifier in its Motion business. ABB are also developing an SST product and does not plan on doing the sidecar since it believes it sits in a transitory category. Additionally, ABB believe the MV UPS will be a very important product category as it moves UPS from smaller scale to a more system level power supply.
- Siemens saw Electrification and Data Centre growing strongly. We believe that Data Centre demand will remain at elevated levels for a few years. We forecast 30% organic order growth in Q3'26.
- Expert session on European data center market outlook (link). The European data centre market continues to benefit from strong demand, with AI expected to become the primary growth driver as AI workloads increase to 3.5x 2025 levels by 2030 and account for 71% of total demand (vs. 54% today). However, power availability rather than demand is increasingly the main constraint, particularly in FLAP-D markets, supporting growth in secondary markets such as Iberia. Despite a temporary slowdown in hyperscaler spending during 2025, activity has reaccelerated in 2026. The sector is also attracting a broader investor base as data centres evolve into a hybrid real estate-infrastructure asset class, with permitting, grid access and delivery certainty remaining more important drivers of returns than construction cost inflation.
- Meta makes cloud push to sell excess AI compute power capacity (link). Meta is considering either selling "raw" compute capacity to external companies or access to various AI models that are hosted on Meta's existing infrastructure. UBS Internet Services analyst flag that CEO Mark Zuckerberg had previously floated both of these options on various public calls and as such this is not new news. As this new line of business was not part of what Mr. Zuckerberg had previously articulated as long term opportunities, some investors may be wary of a pivot. They think that either of these developments will plug some of the duration problem that has ailed the stock, as selling cloud capacity or model access will theoretically yield higher near-term revenue versus waiting for Meta Business Agents and Meta AI chatbots to scale.
- Google unveils new open-source liquid-to-air cooling sidecar for air-cooled environments (link). Google has introduced "Brazos," an open-source, rack-mounted, closed-loop liquid-to-air cooling sidecar designed to enable incremental deployment of high-density liquid cooling within existing air-cooled data centers. The system captures heat at the component level using liquid cooling and dissipates it into the hot aisle via integrated heat exchangers, offering liquid-cooling performance with air-cooling operational simplicity. Brazos is modular (three units per rack, ~60kW total load), compatible with standard OCP ORv3 racks, and supports deionized water or glycol mixtures while operating on 40–60V DC via rack busbars. It incorporates safety and management features such as leak detection, pressure relief, and remote monitoring, and is already commercially ready via partners. By open-sourcing its design, Google aims to accelerate industry adoption of scalable cooling solutions for AI-driven high-power workloads, extending broader Open Compute Project efforts alongside similar sidecar approaches from Microsoft, Meta, and AWS. Our take: We note that 60kW is clearly above traditional compute at 20-30kW but well below the "AI grade" of 100kW+. We don't think this represents a threat to data centre cooling companies and would see it as a rather generic solution trying to make higher densities work without a full liquid to chip setup.

- Data4 confirms €5bn plan for 700MW AI data center in northern France (link). Data4 has confirmed plans to develop a €5bn, 700MW AI-focused data center campus in Escaudain, northern France, marking its largest project to date and one of Europe's largest single-site digital infrastructure investments. The project benefits from strong government backing, fast-track grid access, and a strategically attractive location within a key European connectivity corridor, and forms part of France's broader ambition to position itself as a leading AI infrastructure hub. Our take: Our colleagues in Transportation/Construction team also recently noted an acceleration in planned Data centre projects in Europe/ France - they see it as a potential tailwind mid-term. Earlier in the year, our Sustainability team wrote about France entering a phase of structural overcapacity in low-carbon electricity. In their opinion, France has spare, clean and reliable power at scale, and with more stable marginal costs than fossil-linked systems, at a time when demand from AI, data centres, industry and broader electrification is accelerating.
 - Alderbuck Energy to deploy solid-state transformer at San Diego Supercomputer Center (link). The company will deploy its Nexus Power Unit, which is a medium-voltage solid-state transformer that consolidates multiple pieces of conventional grid equipment into a single modular system. This, the company claims, cuts project capital costs by 20-30 percent, reduces physical footprint by a similar margin, shortens construction timelines by 30-50 percent, and offers up to four percent higher energy efficiency. The project will assess a 12kV AC-to-800VDC configuration against conventional 480V AC systems, generating operational data on powering high-density AI workloads. Prior to deployment, the unit will undergo testing and simulation at UC San Diego's DERConnect facility.
 - South Korea announces US$500bn chip investment on huge AI demand (link). South Korea has announced a record KRW 800 trillion (US$518bn) investment to expand its semiconductor industry, driven by surging demand from AI data centres, with plans to build four new memory fabrication plants in the southwest to establish a second major production hub outside Seoul. Backed by major industry players including Samsung and SK Hynix, the initiative represents one of the largest corporate investment commitments in the country to date.

UBS Evidence Lab is a sell-side team of experts that work across numerous specialized labs creating insight-ready datasets. The experts turn data into evidence by applying a combination of tools and techniques to harvest, cleanse, and connect billions of data items each month. Since 2014, UBS Research analysts have utilized the expertise of UBS Evidence Lab for insight-ready datasets on companies, sectors, and themes, resulting in the production of thousands of differentiated UBS Research reports. UBS Evidence Lab does not provide investment recommendations or advice but provides insight-ready datasets for further analysis by UBS Research and by clients. All published UBS Evidence Lab content is available via UBS Neo. The amount and type of content available may vary. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss access.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

The engineering sector is cyclical by nature. Our estimates and the share prices are therefore likely to be sensitive to changes in expectations for global or regional growth and industrial activity. Exchange rate fluctuations contribute additional risk to the sector. We value the stocks in our engineering coverage universe based on the average of cash flow (DCF, residual income and DDM) and static (multiple-based) valuation methodologies.

Required Disclosures

This document has been prepared by UBS AG London Branch, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates, including former Credit Suisse AG and its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as "UBS".

For information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its UBS Global Research product; historical performance information; certain additional disclosures concerning UBS Global Research recommendations; and terms and conditions for certain third party data used in research report, please visit <https://www.ubs.com/disclosures>. Unless otherwise indicated, information and data in this report are based on company disclosures including but not limited to annual, interim, quarterly reports and other company announcements. The figures contained in performance charts refer to the past; past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results. Additional information will be made available upon request. UBS Securities Co. Limited is licensed to conduct securities investment consultancy businesses by the China Securities Regulatory Commission. UBS acts or may act as principal in the debt securities (or in related derivatives) that may be the subject of this report. This recommendation was finalized on: 06 July 2026 07:07 PM GMT. UBS has designated certain UBS Global Research department members as Derivatives Research Analysts where those department members publish research principally on the analysis of the price or market for a derivative, and provide information reasonably sufficient upon which to base a decision to enter into a derivatives transaction. Where Derivatives Research Analysts co-author research reports with Equity Research Analysts or Economists, the Derivatives Research Analyst is responsible for the derivatives investment views, forecasts, and/or recommendations. Quantitative Research Review: UBS Global Research publishes a quantitative assessment of its analysts' responses to certain questions about the likelihood of an occurrence of a number of short term factors in a product known as the 'Quantitative Research Review'. Views contained in this assessment on a particular stock reflect only the views on those short term factors which are a different timeframe to the 12-month timeframe reflected in any equity rating set out in this note. For the latest responses, please see the Quantitative Research Review Addendum at the back of this report, where applicable. For previous responses please make reference to (i) previous UBS Global Research reports; and (ii) where no applicable research report was published that month, the Quantitative Research Review which can be found at <https://neo.ubs.com/quantitative>, or contact your UBS sales representative for access to the report or the Quantitative Research Team on ubs-quant-answers@ubs.com. A consolidated report which contains all responses is also available and again you should contact your UBS sales representative for details and pricing or the Quantitative Research team on the email above.

Analyst Certification:

Each research analyst primarily responsible for the content of this research report, in whole or in part, certifies that with respect to each security or issuer that the analyst covered in this report: (1) all of the views expressed accurately reflect his or her personal views about those securities or issuers and were prepared in an independent manner, including with respect to UBS, and (2) no part of his or her compensation was, is, or will be, directly or indirectly, related to the specific recommendations or views expressed by that research analyst in the research report.

UBS Global Research: Global Equity Rating Definitions

12-Month Rating	Definition	Coverage ¹	IB Services ²
Buy	FSR is > 6% above the MRA.	55%	24%
Neutral	FSR is between -6% and 6% of the MRA.	40%	21%
Sell	FSR is > 6% below the MRA.	6%	21%

Source: UBS. Rating allocations are as of 30 June 2026.

1:Percentage of companies under coverage globally within the 12-month rating category.

2:Percentage of companies within the 12-month rating category for which investment banking (IB) services were provided within the past 12 months.

KEY DEFINITIONS:Forecast Stock Return (FSR) is defined as expected percentage price appreciation plus gross dividend yield over the next 12 months. In some cases, this yield may be based on accrued dividends. Market Return Assumption (MRA) is defined as the one-year local market interest rate plus 5% (a proxy for, and not a forecast of, the equity risk premium). Under Review (UR) Stocks may be flagged as UR by the analyst, indicating that the stock's price target and/or rating are subject to possible change in the near term, usually in response to an event that may affect the investment case or valuation. Equity Price Targets have an investment horizon of 12 months.

EXCEPTIONS AND SPECIAL CASES:UK and European Investment Fund ratings and definitions are: Buy: Positive on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Neutral: Neutral on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount; Sell: Negative on factors such as structure, management, performance record, discount. Core Banding Exceptions (CBE): Exceptions to the standard +/-6% bands may be granted by the Investment Review Consultation (IRC). Factors considered by the IRC include the stock's volatility and the credit spread of the respective company's debt. As a result, stocks deemed to be very high or low risk may be subject to higher or lower bands as they relate to the rating. When such exceptions apply, they will be identified in the Company Disclosures table in the relevant research piece.

UBS Global Research Disclaimer

This document has been prepared by UBS AG London Branch, an affiliate of UBS AG. UBS AG, its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates, including former Credit Suisse AG and its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates are referred to herein as "UBS".

Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and are only current as of the date of publication. Different areas, groups, and personnel within UBS may produce and distribute separate research products independently of each other. For example, research publications from UBS CIO are produced by UBS Global Wealth Management. UBS Global Research is produced by UBS Investment Bank. Research methodologies and rating systems of each separate research organization may differ, for example, in terms of investment recommendations, investment horizon, model assumptions, and valuation methods. As a consequence, except for certain economic forecasts (for which UBS CIO and UBS Global Research may collaborate), investment recommendations, ratings, price targets, and valuations provided by each of the separate research organizations may be different, or inconsistent. You should refer to each relevant research product for the details as to their methodologies and rating system. Not all clients may have access to all products from every organization. Each research product is subject to the policies and procedures of the organization that produces it.

This document is provided solely to recipients who are expressly authorized by UBS to receive it. If you are not so authorized you must immediately destroy the document.

UBS Global Research is provided to our clients through UBS Neo, and in certain instances, UBS.com and any other system or distribution method specifically identified in one or more communications distributed through UBS Neo or UBS.com (each a system) as an approved means for distributing UBS Global Research. It may also be made available through third party vendors and distributed by UBS and/or third parties via e-mail or alternative electronic means.

All UBS Global Research is available on UBS Neo. Please contact your UBS sales representative if you wish to discuss your access to UBS Neo. Where UBS Global Research refers to "UBS Evidence Lab Inside" or has made use of data provided by UBS Evidence Lab and you would like to access that data please contact your UBS sales representative. UBS Evidence Lab data is available on UBS Neo. The level and types of services provided by UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab to a client may vary depending upon various factors such as a client's individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communications, a client's risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., market wide, sector specific, long-term, short-term, etc.), the size and scope of the overall client relationship with UBS Global Research and UBS Evidence Lab and legal and regulatory constraints. UBS HOLT and UBS Pharma Values are offerings of UBS Global Research. HOLT Lens is a corporate performance platform offering that provides an objective accounting-led framework for comparing and valuing companies and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. In particular, HOLT has a variety of warranted prices based on the scenario chosen; please mail UBS Securities LLC, 11 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010, USA, Attention: Investment Research, if you are interested in the warranted price on a particular company, again subject to commercial considerations. UBS Pharma Values is an analytical tool that involves the creation of a number of individual product net present value calculations, based on published forecasts of sales for pharmaceuticals, and is available to clients of UBS Global Research; for further details and pricing please contact your UBS Sales representative. For all other specific disclaimers, please see <https://www.ubs.com/disclosures>.

When you receive UBS Global Research through a system, your access and/or use of such UBS Global Research is subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer and to the UBS Neo Platform Use Agreement (the "Neo Terms") together with any other relevant terms of use governing the applicable System.

When you receive UBS Global Research via a third party vendor, e-mail or other electronic means, you agree that use shall be subject to this UBS Global Research Disclaimer, the Neo Terms and where applicable the UBS Investment Bank terms of business (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/investment-bank/regulatory.html>) and to UBS's Terms of Use/Disclaimer (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/disclaimer.html>). In addition, you consent to UBS processing your personal data and using cookies in accordance with our Privacy Statement (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legalinfo2/privacy.html>) and cookie notice (<https://www.ubs.com/global/en/legal/privacy/users.html>).

If you receive UBS Global Research, whether through a System or by any other means, you agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research provided via UBS Global Research or otherwise, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates provided to you via UBS Global Research or otherwise, without the prior written consent of UBS. You agree not to use UBS Global Research in any artificial intelligence system, without the prior written consent of UBS.

In certain circumstances you may receive UBS Global Research otherwise than in the capacity of a client of UBS and you understand and agree that under these circumstances (i) the UBS Global Research is provided to you for information purposes only; (ii) for the purposes of receiving it you are not intended to be and will not be treated as a "client" of UBS for any legal or regulatory purpose; (iii) the UBS Global Research must not be relied on or acted upon for any purpose; and (iv) such content is subject to the relevant disclaimers that follow.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is a general communication and is educational in nature; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. The recipient should carefully read this document in its entirety and not draw inferences or conclusions from the rating alone. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, structured derivative products and futures (including OTC derivatives) are not suitable for all investors. Trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "The Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You may read the document at <https://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp> or ask your salesperson for a copy. Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchases and sales of options, such as spreads and straddles. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

UBS notes that no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) currently exists, nor is there a market consensus as to what constitutes an "ESG" (Environmental, Social or Governance) or an equivalent-label, or as to what precise attributes are required for the Information (as defined below) to be defined as ESG or equivalently-labelled. Any information, data or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by UBS or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential ESG objective, issue or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"). Nothing in these materials is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that UBS considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG classification, labelling or similar standards that may exist under the ESG Regimes. UBS has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the Information.

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes:

- (i) valuation or accounting purposes;
- (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or
- (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. UBS does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. For further information on the ways in which UBS Global Research manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS Global Research recommendations, please visit <https://www.ubs.com/disclosures>.

UBS Global Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of UBS Global Research Management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. All material information in relation to published research reports, such as valuation methodology, risk statements, underlying assumptions (including sensitivity analysis of those assumptions), ratings history etc. as required by the Market Abuse Regulation, can be found on UBS Neo. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

UBS Global Research may utilise artificial intelligence tools ("AI Tools") in the preparation of this document. Notwithstanding any such use of AI Tools, this document has undergone human review.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by UBS Global Research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms under English law or, if not carried out by UBS in the UK the law of the relevant jurisdiction in which UBS determines it carries out the activity) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Within the past 12 months UBS may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

Please note that all transactions conducted by UBS are consistent with sanctions regulations imposed by Switzerland, the European Union, the United Nations, the United Kingdom and the United States, per UBS' global sanctions policy. UBS opinion as to future investment worthiness assumes no new sanctions are imposed.

US persons are prohibited from purchasing or selling securities of certain companies designated as being associated with the Chinese Military in accordance with the amended US Presidential Executive Order 13959.

Risk information:

You agree that you shall not copy, revise, amend, create a derivative work, provide to any third party, or in any way commercially exploit any UBS research, and that you shall not extract data from any research or estimates, without the prior written consent of UBS.

This document is for distribution only as may be permitted by law. It is not directed to, or intended for distribution to or use by, any person or entity who is a citizen or resident of or located in any locality, state, country or other jurisdiction where such distribution, publication, availability or use would be contrary to law or regulation or would subject UBS to any registration or licensing requirement within such jurisdiction.

This document is for your information only; it is not an advertisement nor is it a solicitation or an offer to buy or sell any financial instruments or to participate in any particular trading strategy. Nothing in this document constitutes a representation that any investment strategy or recommendation is suitable or appropriate to an investor's individual circumstances or otherwise constitutes a personal recommendation. By providing this document, none of UBS or its representatives has any responsibility or authority to provide or have provided investment advice in a fiduciary capacity or otherwise. Investments involve risks, and investors should exercise prudence and their own judgment in making their investment decisions. None of UBS or its representatives is suggesting that the recipient or any other person take a specific course of action or any action at all. By receiving this document, the recipient acknowledges and agrees with the intended purpose described above and further disclaims any expectation or belief that the information constitutes investment advice to the recipient or otherwise purports to meet the investment objectives of the recipient. The financial instruments described in the document may not be eligible for sale in all jurisdictions or to certain categories of investors.

Options, derivative products and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky. Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For investment advice, trade execution or other enquiries, clients should contact their local sales representative.

The value of any investment or income may go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the full (or any) amount invested. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. Neither UBS nor any of its directors, employees or agents accepts any liability for any loss (including investment loss) or damage arising out of the use of all or any of the information (as defined below).

Prior to making any investment or financial decisions, any recipient of this document or the information should take steps to understand the risk and return of the investment and seek individualized advice from his or her personal financial, legal, tax and other professional advisors that takes into account all the particular facts and circumstances of his or her investment objectives.

Any prices stated in this document are for information purposes only and do not represent valuations for individual securities or other financial instruments. There is no representation that any transaction can or could have been effected at those prices, and any prices do not necessarily reflect UBS's internal books and records or theoretical model-based valuations and may be based on certain assumptions. Different assumptions by UBS or any other source may yield substantially different results.

No representation or warranty, either expressed or implied, is provided in relation to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information contained in any materials to which this document relates (the "Information"), except with respect to Information concerning UBS. The Information is not intended to be a complete statement or summary of the securities, markets or developments referred to in the document. UBS does not undertake to update or keep current the Information. Any opinions expressed in this document may change without notice and may differ or be contrary to opinions expressed by other business areas or groups, personnel or other representative of UBS. Any statements contained in this report attributed to a third party represent UBS's interpretation of the data, information and/or opinions provided by that third party either publicly or through a subscription service, and such use and interpretation have not been reviewed by the third party. In no circumstances may this document or any of the Information (including any forecast, value, index or other calculated amount ("Values")) be used for any of the following purposes: (i) valuation or accounting purposes; (ii) to determine the amounts due or payable, the price or the value of any financial instrument or financial contract; or (iii) to measure the performance of any financial instrument including, without limitation, for the purpose of tracking the return or performance of any Value or of defining the asset allocation of portfolio or of computing performance fees.

By receiving this document and the Information you will be deemed to represent and warrant to UBS that you will not use this document or any of the Information for any of the above purposes or otherwise rely upon this document or any of the Information.

UBS has policies and procedures, which include, without limitation, independence policies and permanent information barriers, that are intended, and upon which UBS relies, to manage potential conflicts of interest and control the flow of information within divisions of UBS (including between Global Wealth Management and UBS Global Research) and among its subsidiaries, branches and affiliates. For further information on the ways in which UBS manages conflicts and maintains independence of its research products, historical performance information and certain additional disclosures concerning UBS research recommendations, please visit <https://www.ubs.com/research-methodology>.

Research will initiate, update and cease coverage solely at the discretion of research management, which will also have sole discretion on the timing and frequency of any published research product. The analysis contained in this document is based on numerous assumptions. Different assumptions could result in materially different results.

The analyst(s) responsible for the preparation of this document may interact with trading desk personnel, sales personnel and other parties for the purpose of gathering, applying and interpreting market information. UBS relies on information barriers to control the flow of information contained in one or more areas within UBS into other areas, units, groups or affiliates of UBS. The compensation of the analyst who prepared this document is determined exclusively by research management and senior management (not including investment banking). Analyst compensation is not based on investment banking revenues; however, compensation may relate to the revenues of UBS and/or its divisions as a whole, of which investment banking, sales and trading are a part, and UBS's subsidiaries, branches and affiliates as a whole.

For financial instruments admitted to trading on an EU regulated market: UBS AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries (excluding UBS Securities LLC) acts as a market maker or liquidity provider (in accordance with the interpretation of these terms in the UK) in the financial instruments of the issuer save that where the activity of liquidity provider is carried out in accordance with the definition given to it by the laws and regulations of any other EU jurisdictions, such information is separately disclosed in this document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. UBS may have issued a warrant the value of which is based on one or more of the financial instruments referred to in the document. UBS and its affiliates and employees may have long or short positions, trade as principal and buy and sell in instruments or derivatives identified herein; such transactions or positions may be inconsistent with the opinions expressed in this document.

Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". You may read the document at <https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp> or ask your financial advisor for a copy.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or Sustainable Investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.

The word "advice" and/or any of its equivalent terms shall be read and construed in conjunction with the definition of the term "investment marketing" as defined under the Israeli Regulation of Investment Advice, Investment Marketing and Portfolio Management Law. The Swiss laws and regulations require a number of mandatory disclosures to be made in independent financial research reports or recommendations. Pursuant to the Swiss Financial Market Infrastructure Act and the Financial Market Infrastructure Ordinance-FINMA, banks must disclose the percentage of voting rights they hold in companies being researched, if these holdings are equal to or exceed the statutory thresholds. In addition, the Directives on the Independence of Financial Research, issued by the Swiss Bankers Association, mandate a number of disclosures, including the disclosure of potential conflicts of interest, the participation within previous 12 months in any securities issues on behalf of the company being researched, as well as the fact that remuneration paid to the financial analysts is based generally upon the performance of (i) the new issues department or investment banking; or (ii) securities trading performance (including proprietary trading) or sales. Italy: This publication is not intended to constitute a public offer under Italian law.
