Stronger-than-expected order visibility

- Ramping up AI lead frames revenue with rush orders
- Heat-spreader products started to contribute revenue in 2026
- Reaffirming our Buy (1) call; raising 12M TP to TWD265

What's new: We attended SDI's investor conference on 27 May. We now foresee a brighter-than-expected revenue and gross-margin outlook over 2026, thanks to its better-than-expected auto, industrial, and consumer electronic segments along with the upside potential for its AI lead frame and heat spreader as well as multiple price hikes (due to cost inflation and a copper price hike YTD). We reaffirm our Buy (1) call (see our latest flash 1Q26 results: a strong beat, 7 May).

What's the impact: Brighter-than-expected lead frame outlook. For 2Q26, SDI expects its revenue to grow double-digit % QoQ in addition to a better order outlook from auto (recovering revenue momentum from existing products and rising revenue contribution from new products) and industrial (improving revenue momentum since 2Q26), and better-than-feared consumer revenue with rising momentum in the recent three months. SDI mentioned that the utilisation rate is high at its plants in China (from auto demand with new products contribution) and Taiwan (from AI, auto, and industrial demand for IDM and OSAT clients).

Rising revenue contribution from AI lead frame and heat spreader. Its AI lead frame accounted for 6% of revenue in 1Q26, and management targets to reach double-digit revenue contribution by 4Q26. SDI highlights that the company has received many rush orders for AI lead frame, and 50-60 new AI-related new products are expected to be launched in 2H26. SDI is obtaining product approval for its heat spreader and expects "tens of millions" of TWD contribution in 2026, mainly from auto and the CPO switch. SDI is currently testing the production for CPU and GPU. Although less than 1% of revenue contribution is expected in 2026, SDI is positive about its heat spreader outlook going forward. In terms of gross margin, SDI will likely optimise its product mix and hike prices in 2Q26. It is planning another price hike for 2H26. We raise our 2027-28E EPS by 14-19%, mainly due to our more aggressive gross margin assumption on a better product mix, rising automation level, and production efficiency.

What we recommend: We reaffirm our Buy (1) rating with a new 12M TP of TWD265 (from TWD192), now based on a target PER of 39x (from 30x), still at the lower end of its past-5-year range of 12-73x [average PER: 28x] due to its strong earnings visibility (net profit CAGR of 27.0% over 2026-28E, from 15.6% previously) on our 1-year forward EPS. Key downside risks: worse-than-expected end demand and worse-than-expected gross-margin expansion.

How we differ: Our 2026E EPS is 7% higher than the Bloomberg consensus, likely due to our more aggressive view on its revenue and gross-margin expansion.

| G     | Executive/board quality       | 2The CEO and chairperson of SDI are not the same individual. SDI's board has 10 members, including 4 independent directors (40% of total). This ratio is higher than the regulatory requirement of at least 20%. There is a compensation committee overseen by SDI's board.                                                                     |
|       | Capital management            | 1SDI's payout ratio has been stable over the past decade (generally c.60%). SDI's dividend payout ratio was 66% in 2025; we believe SDI's long-term goal is to maintain a highly stable dividend payout policy.                                                                                                                                 |

| S     | Supply chain management       | 1SDI has set several evaluation standards for its existing and new suppliers; the company's supply chain adopts the Hazardous Substance Process Management standard in accordance with the IECQ QC080000 standard. The company also requires its direct materials suppliers (accounts for 85% of its suppliers) to have ISO 9001 certification. |
| E     | Water & wastewater management | 2We note that SDI has made efforts in lowering water consumption, with three chemical treatment systems for processing waste water, one biological treatment system and one small-scale batch treatment system with a high-concentration degreasing agent.                                                                                      |

Note: Management score represents a company's ability to manage/benefit from certain ESG topics. The scores range from 1 to 3, with 1 being the strongest.
