Time to start re-visiting some of the hardest hit sectors within APAC Tech

Since late June, APAC tech stocks have broadly retrenched, with the MSCI ex Japan IT index down 20% from June 22nd, largely in line with the semis SOX index down 16%. This coming after nearly 3 months of a very sustained rally. Amongst the larger caps, the correction has been particularly marked for SK Hynix (-51% from peak) and Samsung (-37%). We believe technical factors played a large part: 1/ Retail ETF volumes in both stocks, which peaked out around the same time (see Page 6), and have materially come down since (a positive); 2/ over-crowding with many Asia Ex/GEM active long only equity funds reaching 10% single stock limit – crowding factors are now less pronounced (Page 3). Fundamentally though, investors also grew more worried about the sustainability of the AI cycle, with financing a growing concern (evidenced by rising credit spreads). Sectors such as Memory, IC Substrates, MLCCs – which combine AI demand drivers and (til then) growing supply shortages – ended particularly exposed, followed by Semiscap. All top 4 US hyperscalers have since reported, with our global Tech research team raising 2026E/2027E operating cash flow forecasts. From here, we expect concerns to start to ease. We recommend investors to revisit several of the AI-exposed sub-sectors, with our order of preference being Memory > MLCCs > Semiscap.

Why memory spending at hyperscalers (and how to control it) is so critical

Our revised forecasts for the top 12 hyperscalers capex stands at $975bn in 2026E (+92% YoY) and $1,424bn in 2027E (+46% YoY), with still possible upside mainly driven by memory spending (directly or indirectly). Importantly, we have slightly reduced our estimate for hyperscalers memory spending to $899bn in 2027E from $356bn in 2026E, still a YoY increment of $543bn. This comes after continuing increases YTD, which led Memory to be the biggest driver of capex hikes at hyperscalers. The reason for this are LTAs between memory makers and hyperscalers, which help to control some of the memory pricing upside into the upcycle, combined with a higher LTA coverage ratio of total volumes – >50% of memory bits by YE vs. our 35% assumption prior – and higher for hyperscalers. LTAs are making the memory upcycle more sustainable, a positive for both hyperscalers as customers, and memory makers as they are ROE accretive through-cycle (link).

HOLT screening of the 50 largest market caps within APAC Tech

Market-implied CFROI has fallen by nearly 100 bp since June, in line with the recent pullback in tech. Even so, the sector's fundamental outlook remains supported, with CFROI forecast to increase by 240–570 bp from 2025 levels. Earnings sentiment also remains positive, although the magnitude of CFROI revisions has moderated from the April/May highs. Stocks that screen as cheap relative to history, have positive one-month CFROI revisions and meet the HOLT operational quality peer-rank threshold include: Accton, Advantest, Aspeed, GUC, Quanta, Samsung, TSMC and Wiwynn (all Buy).

INVESTOR POSITIONING

Within APAC Tech top 50 market cap, SK Hynix, TSMC, Samsung, Kioxia, and Tokyo Electron remain the most over-crowded. Still, those factors have receded for all 5 bar Kioxia. Our discussions with investors also indicate more divergence in investors views for Memory than in 2Q26.

Crowding scores are based on a proprietary combination of multiple data sets measured at the individual stock level, capturing both long and short positions in a single, net score for greater stability and directness. Scores range from approximately -30 (very short crowded) to 30 (very long crowded), offering a more robust alternative to indirect or incomplete crowding measures.

APAC TECH THROUGH THE HOLT LENS

Driven by AI-related demand, CFROI forecasts for APAC tech have risen steadily since early 2023, peaking at 12.3% in February this year. Since then, forecast CFROI has declined by nearly 60 bp amid renewed geopolitical uncertainty in the Middle East, rising energy prices and inflation pressures.

Market-implied CFROI has also fallen by nearly 100 bp since June, in line with the recent pullback in tech stocks. Even so, the sector's fundamental outlook remains supported, with CFROI forecast to increase by 240–570 bp from 2025 levels. Earnings sentiment also remains positive, although the magnitude of CFROI revisions has moderated from the April/May highs.

Across key tech markets, Taiwan, Japan and Korea saw the strongest CFROI revisions over the past month. At the stock level, SK Hynix, Advantest, Renesas and Nanya Tech were among the names with the largest upward revisions.

From a valuation perspective, Taiwan tech stocks appear most appealing relative to regional peers based on HOLT P/B versus forecast CFROI-DR spread.

AI CYCLE AND HYPERSCALERS CAPEX

UBS Global Tech Research capex forecasts are now better reflecting the significant impact Memory has on it. We now forecast capex for the top 12 hyperscalers to reach $975bn in 2026 (+92% YoY) and $1,424bn in 2027 (+46% YoY). For the top 9 – for which we have OCF forecasts – we now forecast capex to reach $916bn in 2026 (+88% YoY) and $1,358bn in 2027 (+48% YoY). On the positive side, we have increased our OCF forecasts for the top 9 to $914bn in 2026 and $1,272bn in 2027, reducing the gap between capex and OCF.

PC & SMARTPHONE DEMAND

2Q26 ODM notebook shipment came in ahead our expectations with +4% QoQ, -8% YoY to 30.4mn units as H126 saw strong pull-in ahead of component price hike concern. However, our supply chain check suggests the momentum is likely to end in H1 with a widespread conservativeness on H2 demand. Our 2026 total ODM shipment is therefore trimmed to -10% YoY (from LSD decline) reflecting continued memory shortage along with CPU/passive component constraint, aligned with UBS global PC forecast of -11% YoY.

June '26 YTD global smartphone unit sell-through now stands 551.4m units (-7.8% YoY), with all regions in negative comps. With increasing memory costs continuing to weigh on bill of material (BOM) costs of smartphones – particularly mid-range/low-end devices – we continue to see downside to smartphone demand and expect smartphone unit sell-in to decline by ~14% YoY in 2H26 and by 10% YoY for the full-year.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

APAC Technology:

Investing in the technology sector involves a high degree of risk. Rapid technological changes, increasing competition and exposure to macroeconomic cycles are among the many risks faced by investors in technology stocks. Moreover, it is extremely difficult to project the financial results of tech companies since their operating models are highly volatile and unpredictable. Finally, valuing technology stocks can prove challenging, as neither traditional nor non-traditional valuation measures have provided much insight into how these stocks trade. Valuation methodologies in the sector include target price-book-multiples based on the long term average ROE and the cost of equity.

HOLT Disclaimer:

The HOLT methodology does not assign ratings or a target price to a security. It is an analytical tool that involves use of a set of proprietary quantitative algorithms and warranted value calculations, collectively called the HOLT valuation model, that are consistently applied to all the companies included in its database. The HOLT valuation model is a discounted cash flow model. Third-party data (including consensus earnings estimates) are systematically translated into a number of default variables and incorporated into the algorithms available in the HOLT valuation model. The source financial statement, pricing, and earnings data provided by outside data vendors are subject to quality control and may also be adjusted to more closely measure the underlying economics of firm performance. These adjustments provide consistency when analyzing a single company across time, or analyzing multiple companies across industries or national borders. The default scenario that is produced by the HOLT valuation model establishes a warranted price that represents the expected mean value for a security based upon empirically derived fade algorithms that forecast a firm's future return on capital and growth rates over an extended period of time. As the third-party data are updated, the warranted price updates automatically. A company's future achieved return on capital or growth rate may differ from HOLT default forecast. Additional information about the HOLT methodology is available upon request. CFROI, CFROE, HOLT, HOLT Lens, HOLTfolio and "Powered by HOLT" are trademarks or registered trademarks of UBS in the United States and other countries. HOLT is a corporate performance and valuation service of UBS.

HOLT Business Resilience Dashboard (HBRD) Disclaimer:

The HOLT Business Resilience Dashboard (HBRD) is constructed by applying systematic processes on publicly available records and third-party data to generate quantitative measures. The HBRD consistently assigns scores using a transparent combination of metrics and weights across financial, environmental and governance inputs. Individual companies can be scored on a global-size and/or region-size relative basis. The HBRD is also translated into five textual assessments (e.g. "Highest" or "Lowest") based on their quintile percentile rank. For further details on the HBRD methodology HOLT Business Resilience Primer please contact UBS Securities LLC, 11 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010, USA, Attention: Investment Research. The HBRD does not constitute or imply any endorsement or recommendation of any individual company. UBS has not sought to independently verify information obtained from public and third-party sources and makes no representations or warranties as to accuracy, completeness or reliability of such information due to inconsistent reporting of data by companies. Additionally, as global laws, guidelines and regulations in relation to the tracking and provision of such data are evolving, all such disclosures are made on a non-reliance basis and are subject to change. Any figures, values or other data published in this report are neither designed nor administered in line with the standards of the IOSCO Principles for Financial Benchmarks or the EU Benchmarks Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 or any other benchmark related regulatory guidelines and as such you are prohibited from using those figures, values or data in a way which would amount to use of a financial benchmark under those regimes (or any equivalent rules or regulations in any global jurisdiction). HOLT transferred to UBS on October 1, 2024 – renamed as UBS HOLT. The UBS HOLT Lens website and materials will be transitioning to UBS branding over time, with expected full redesign to UBS in time

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
